

What We Need Now!...

Power-up your instruction and learning!

Transforming Learning: High-Quality, Student-Centered Remote Learning

As educators, we are now in a major shift to remote learning. Whether we are utilizing synchronistic learning or asynchronistic learning or a balance of both, we need to update and refine our skill sets. We will cover explicit strategies and ideas for student and teacher self-reflection, feedback models, creative assignments, student assessment, and discuss ways to stay connected to our students.

Join two expert facilitators who know this work:

Emory Roethel

Carolyn Tinsley-Tremmel

Be ready for any "shift" in teaching and learning.
High impact, on target learning!
Each session is one hour of strategies/activities and 15 minutes for targeted Q and A!

We need to be transforming instruction and learning in this changing educational landscape!

These are "how-to" sessions! Focused on online, standards-based, student-centered learning...

How to:

- create an online environment for student-centered learning to thrive
- enhance and transform the learning process
- build student skills, supporting social-emotional health and teacher/student connections
- choose and use appropriate technology applications
- creating clear expectations, guided practice and exploration
- use data regularly to identify each student's learning needs
