Educators play a critical role in framing our mindsets to focus on the assets, aspirations, skills, and resources that our students bring with them. Phrases such as “language barrier” or “achievement gap” imply physical obstacles exist when in fact the concern is really about developing language, or skills and strategies to succeed. Our mindsets and language shape our instructional decisions.

Session 1: Mindsets: Fostering Success and Engagement for all Learners	We will begin by examining mindsets held by teachers that foster success and engagement for all learners as well as the kinds of student academic mindsets that research shows us leads to consistently positive outcomes for students. We will build this background knowledge together to propel us forward in considering and planning around the implications for classroom and school-wide instructional practices.
Session 2: Mindsets: Student Ownership of Learning and Assessments in Hybrid Learning	We will do a deeper dive into instruction and assessment practices that foster positive academic mindsets, and engage and empower all learners, including our MLLs and SWDs. Participants will engage in choice-ins for specific topics as well as have an opportunity for collaboration with facilitators and other members of the cohort to develop an actionable plan for next steps in moving forward with mindsets, practices, and tools.
